IMPLEMENT AND PROMOTE ALTERNATIVES FOR SUSTAINABLE SELF-SUFFICIENCY.

La Graine Indocile is a nonprofit organization recognized as serving the public interest.

Founded in November 2009, its goal is to implement and promote alternatives for sustainable self-sufficiency.

Topics range from food production to eco-friendly housing and human relationships. The idea is to effectively meet everyone's needs without compromising the health of our beautiful planet.

For a more eco-friendly lifestyle, there are now many techniques that allow us to seriously focus on creating food-producing spaces, seed propagation, knowledge of wild plants, experimentation with non-polluting techniques, building with natural materials, energy production, and the sharing of knowledge and resources...

La Graine Indocile therefore explores a little bit of all of this at once... Suffice it to say that there is no shortage of topics and ideas!

Training and Workshops

Alongside our gardening and landscaping efforts, part of our mission is to share the knowledge we've gained and the techniques we've tested as best we can. To that end, we organize training sessions, workshops, and lectures.

In the past, we have offered participatory work camps, as shown in the video opposite.
