GRAINE Guyane is a network dedicated to promoting and advancing environmental education for sustainable development (EESD) in French Guiana. Its purpose is to support the work of local stakeholders, and its missions include:

- bringing stakeholders together and ensuring consistency and synergy in their actions,

- training,
- conducting educational research to promote and advance nature and environmental education.

GRAINE's projects are structured around four missions:

1. Building and fostering a network dynamic to connect the diverse stakeholders in EEDD, create connections, facilitate meetings, and share information...
2. Developing/Pooling EEDD initiatives in French Guiana, supporting project leaders, training staff and volunteers, sharing tools and knowledge...
3. Raising the profile of EEDD/Giving a voice to EEDD stakeholders, promoting local initiatives, working toward recognition, participating in various steering committees, establishing the Regional EEDD Consultation Forum...
4. Fostering innovation and the action-research approach in EEDD.

GRAINE Guyane is a network: it is not there to do the work for stakeholders but to help them do it.
