Are there chemical pollutants in your tap water? Check out our interactive map.

Structure : Future Generations

Understanding water quality is essential to engaging public authorities and protecting this vital resource

While drinking water pollution is a concern for many of us, it is very difficult to get a clear picture of its quality.

The data exists, but it is hard to access, complex, and, above all, difficult to interpret.

That is why Générations Futures and Data For Good created Dans Mon Eau. A unique, simple tool accessible to everyone, which compiles official data, updated as soon as new results become available.
