Promoting plant, animal, and human diversity, permaculture, collective decision-making processes, and personal development techniques

Structure : United Toward Earth

Difficulté : facile

Unis Vers Terre aims to bring together anyone interested in laying the groundwork for a harmonious way of life that respects both people and nature, and to demonstrate its feasibility in various locations across France. The association's members promote plant, animal, and human diversity, permaculture, collective decision-making processes, and personal development techniques; they work to boost the local economy (notably by proposing a transition approach), with a view to replicability.

Means of action:

- Experimentation, research, training, and information regarding participatory decision-making methods

- Training and information on innovative agricultural methods
- Training and information on methods of processing organic foods
- Organizing eco-construction and self-build projects
- Organizing meetings, training sessions, and/or conferences and workshops
- Building a resource library
- Organizing outreach activities for the general public and schools
- the co-creation of various cultural works
- the reflection on and integration of traditional regional knowledge
- the publication of books or periodicals, and the production of films
