Working to promote biodiversity and environmental protection - Cultivating plants experimentally in harmony with nature and the climate - Sharing our experiences and observations through environmental education

We are developing a nourishing, experimental, educational forest garden—a haven for biodiversity and a mosaic of ecosystems (hedgerows and field guilds, perennials, food-producing and honey-producing plants, vegetable gardens, areas of natural fallow land, a biodiversity pond, etc.).

We draw inspiration from the principles of permaculture and agroecology.

We lead workshops on environmental and biodiversity awareness, creating with nature, sensory awareness, sustainable food...
